

Scotland student wins state energy essay contest

Contributed by The Ridgefield Press
Saturday, June 06, 2009 05:31

Max Jarcho, a fifth grade student at Scotland School, receives an Energy Star laptop computer after his essay on a green energy issue was judged to be the best among fifth graders in the fifth annual “eesmarts Energy Efficiency Essay Contest.” Kaitlyn Adamini, also a Scotland fifth grader, won honorable mention. Presenting the computer are Connecticut Energy Efficiency Fund Chairman Jeff Gaudio and Connecticut Department of Public Utility Control Commissioner Amalia Vazquez Bzydra. eesmarts is an energy efficiency and clean energy learning effort for grades Pre-K through eight and is funded by the Connecticut Energy Efficiency Fund.